The Philippine Reservation—The Moros, Igores, Bagobos and Negritos—Two Small People.

A visit to the Philippine reservation at the World's Fair is no less an intelligent and observant visitor's duty than a trip to the islands themselves. There are in this reservation forty-seven acres set apart for this special exhibit. On these grounds are more than a thousand native Filipinos, representing all the leading tribes of the islands. Here they live in huts fashioned and built by their own hands of material brought from their own land. Here they are ruled over by their native chiefs and are seen in all their native primitiveness.

This reservation may be reached by the World's Fair visitor by crossing a "pond" no larger than Arrow Head Lake, which fronts it on the north. This picturesque sheet of water is crossed by three bridges, one of which is a reproduction of the Spanish bridge which crosses the Pasig to Manila. As we stroll leisurely across this bridge, we noted with interest the fish traps of split bamboo spiked along the water's edge and the strange looking, bulky crafts swaying at their moorings on the shore of this wedge shaped lake. We were also singularly attracted by the pipes thru the Moros built on stilts or piles sunk in the water. This "Filipino Venice" is a very popular attraction.

There are two tribes of the Moros here, the Samal Moros, who are coast dwellers and were once famous pirates, and the Lanao Moros who are coast dwellers and were once famous pirates, and the Lanao Moros from the interior of Mindanao. The Samal and Lanao tribes are bitter enemies, so intense and so ancient is this hatred of each other that a guard is on duty between these villages to prevent a probable clash. The Samals are staunch allies of Uncle Sam. They are ruled by a rajah. Datto Fecund, so much written about in the newspapers, is their prime minister and rules over the village. He lives in a bamboo hut built over the water. He speaks no English but is quite courtly in manners, tipping his turban to departing visitors. At his side on the porch he is entertained by weird music furnished by the Moro girls, who play on a piano that looks like brass kettles inverted. They beat these with heavy sticks. His half naked tribesmen dance the mori-moro dance brandishing spears and going through wild gyrations.

The Lanao Moros are of a sullen, timid temperament. They wear tight trousers, a gaudy colored shirt and a turban. They object to having their pictures taken, thinking it is a violation of their Mohammedan faith. Posted in their village is this sign: "Persons photographing the Moros do so at their peril." Manda, one of their tribe, speaks English very well and goes about the exposition unattended.

Perhaps the most shadowing feature of the Philippine reservation is the picturesque village of the Igorot. Their religion for dog meat and their almost utter disregard for clothing having been so widely advertised, their huts of pine palm with their sylvan background are extensively visited. There are more than a hundred of these dog eaters on exhibition. Dog is the only food but the women are not allowed to partake of the canine relish, because it is supposed to serve them to fight, and they do not want the their women to fight.

There are three tribes represented here, the Bututs, from Luzon, who are head-hunters, are probably the most interesting. They are all spirit worshipers and give ceremonial dances to the horrible noise of brass drums, which look like pig skins. They dance around a copper pot and many peace, nickels and they are tossed into this receptacle by visitors. Antonio, the chief of the tribe, is custodian of this tribal fund, nearly a thousand dollars now. He has taken his share of the spoils gathered from well filled American pockets and bought him a typewriter, which he has learned to manipulate with considerable skill. He spells out his own name and tells it is, "Antonio." His latest fancy is to own an automobile, but the tom-toms of his tribal dance will have to be heard a long time before this wish is granted.

I heard a "Kodak fiend" offer Antonio ten cents to allow him to take his picture. Antonio was willing, so after placing a nickel in each ear, he posed in front of his hut. He looked the perfect savage with his almost nude body and the strange tattooing on his breast, which told he had taken five heads. His ambition is to take twenty heads which will entitle him to the red beak of a bird, which is given every Igorot when he qualifies by taking twenty heads. Antonio is a fine specimen of his tribe, who have a soft and beautifully copper tinted skin, flat noses, high cheek bones and little and graceful forms. They wear no clothes except a most abbreviated breech cloth and a brimless hat about the size of a croquet mallet on the back of the head. They wear long hair, which is very black, coarse and straight.

Singwa, the five-year old baby of the Suyo tribe, attracts the attention of every visitor by his cute ways and his exceptional brightness. My sister gave him a quantity of chewing gum. He took it with the greatest interest and tossed the rest to the children who were seated on the ground nearby. These children are taught English every day for an hour, and a great many of them can speak a little English. They sing "America" to every new party that comes into the village, and when they finish all break out into a hearty laugh, which is almost contagious. An American baby was attracting the attention of the Igorot girls the day we visited them. They crowded around it saying "Pretty baby. 'Mis give the pretty baby a ring."

The mother of the baby offered to pay for the rings but the donors were indignant at the idea. These rings were some they had for sale made of bamboo twisted and plaited. One bright little fellow fitted one on my finger, this is my most cherished souvenir. Some of the little fellows would say to every man they passed, "Buy a ring, your wife," but if he asked any questions other than "What's your name?" or "How old are you?" would answer with a shake of the head "No don't know." A pretty girl, who said she was sixteen years old, stood outside her hut and called out "Hello" to all passers by, but could say little else than "Good bye, come back again," as they passed on. The women wear light skirts and fit fitting waists and strings of beads. The men and boys only wear breech cloths. They all have pikes with chains attached. They are good natured and they do not seem to object to our cloths and intimate inspection of them, although they are visited every day by people who nose around in their huts as if they were dime museums and who look down upon them with superior complacency. Occasionally some of them are patronized into mad rebellion and they cartoon the visitor who looks pityingly down from the peaks of culture on which he stands and wonders at the savages' uncouthness. It is a savage's pictorial error at civilization. Antonio, a twelve-year old boy, is about the only one who can speak much English. When asked if he liked to go to school he answered, "Yes," and in answer to the question how he would like to wear American clothes said, "I like my breech string, and shoes are a bother, anyway."

We asked if the Igorot were allowed to eat dog flesh here and were told that Gov. Hunt, who has charge of these people, is authorized to buy twenty dogs every week. We were taken to the tribunal of the Igorot, a circular enclosure where they frequently hold their dogs. This is where they hold court also. It has no roof, is paved with flat rocks with a knee high rock wall around it. The tribunal sits at one side are for the wise men of the tribe. When a dispute arises the wise men decide as seems to them just. The offender is sometimes incarcerated in a grass-roofed jail without guard. If he violates a sentence he is given a good whipping.

In the Visayan village the palisades are enclosed by an ornamental fence of laced bamboo. Here you find the most intelligent natives, pretty maidens and courteous young men. In this village is to be found the only church on the fair grounds. It was dedicated by Cardinal Sallati with imposing ceremony. They have had one marriage in this church, the culminating of a romance which developed on the transport coming over from Manila.

The Bagobos are the handsomest people on the island. They show great animation and laugh a great deal. Their head-dressed costumes are very becoming to the savage beauty of the women. They like the Igorot, are head hunters, a most abbreviated breech cloth and a brimless hat about the size of a croquet mallet on the back of the head. Field for Study for Northerners That Cannot be Equaled.

There are some northerners who know more about Germany and about Italy, and perhaps about "the romantic and picturesque Balkan peninsula," than they do about Georgia, and South Carolina, and Texas. Consequently they show more sense when they are talking about less majestic, or about the temporal power of the Pope, or about Turkish oppression, than they do when they are talking about the right of the negro to vote.

It is so easy to think that just because you live in a country you must understand it. The southerner and the northerner are fellow-citizens. They owe allegiance to the same flag. Therefore, the southerner is perfectly competent to tell the southerner how to settle the negro question.

The fallacy in this logic is that because of the presence of the negro the social condition of Charleston, S. C., differs from that of Boston, Mass., more than that of London, England. And a citizen of Boston gets on better in London than he does in Charleston.

The negro question is greater than any other question in America. And it is not only greater but more delicate. It is a matter of social, as well as of political and industrial life. So more than almost any other question that could be imagined, it needs personal experience. The occasional negro of the north is not an adequate basis for study in the negro of the south. In the south the negro in many communities outnumbers the white, and there is a possibility of negro rule.

Therefore northerner, if you have time and money to visit new scenes, visit the south. Some of your fellows have gone to the south and have lived there for a few years. They don't feel now quite as you do. See if you can find out what it was that modified their opinions.

Go south and watch the descendants of Washington, Madison, Jefferson, Marshall, Jackson, Clay, Calhoun, Polk and Lee while they, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, are working out, with errors of mind and with errors of heart, the greatest domestic problem that ever ate into the heart of a civilized people. Then come back and tell if you still think that they are wrong who will say so in a different tone.—Chicago Tribune.

Testimony of a Minister.

Rev. J. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark., writes: "For 12 years I suffered from Yellow Jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years. I feel like a new man. My Liver and Kidney troubles, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by the Woods Drug Co. and Johnson Drug Store."

Lockhart Letter.

Lockhart, Oct. 28.—I was very sorry to read in The Lantern of recent date the announcement of the death of Mrs. D. C. Freeman. She was young, beautiful and accomplished and a Christian.

A goodly number of the Chester county farmers are with us from day to day bringing in their cotton. The length drive was broken on the night of the 25th of October. The drought has been quite a protracted one lasting 59 days. During that time many wells have failed. The river has been a long ways below the low water mark, possibly, less than it has been in many years, the memory of the old settler inhabitants going not to the contrary. The turnip crop has been about as near a failure as it will be, but it has been a very favorable time for harvesting the crops.

There has been a considerable epidemic of chills and fever with us. They mostly have been the old fashioned shivering fever bottom kind.

Messrs. Will. Livingston and Huffman also Messrs. Loomis and Anne Howell are taking in the state fair this week. Cotton has been coming in regularly for the last few weeks. The protracted meeting at the Baptist church just closed was well attended and some interest manifested but no conversions. Rev. J. R. Funderburk, of Union, did most of the preaching.

The night school here, supported by Lockhart Mill Co., is quite a success. Many people who cannot attend a day school are solicited to attend night school to them either for tuition, lights or fuel.

Mrs. Alice Lackey received a message that her daughter, Mrs. Daisy Chalk Bates, of Winston county, Miss., was dead. She left Chester county about five years ago. She was married to a Mr. E. Bates some two years ago. She was about 21 years and was the daughter of the late H. P. Chalk. Hoping that some of your quill drivers will awake to the importance of the exalted position they occupy and keep us informed as to the happenings in their localities, I am yours truly,

HOWARD.
A Love Letter.
Would not interest you if you're looking for a guaranteed Salve for Sores, Burns or Piles. Otto Dodd, of Ponder, Mo., writes: "I suffered with an ugly sore for a year, but a box of Bucklen's Aches and Pains cured me. It's the best Salve on earth. 25c at the Woods Drug Co. and Johnson Drug Store."

In Loving Remembrance.

Beckhamville, S. C., Oct. 25.—My friend, H. V. Varnado, was born June 22, 1856, and died Oct. 22, 1904, from an illness of about two years. At ten o'clock Saturday morning she was taken with a chill and she died at 12 o'clock. Dr. McKewen was called in and pronounced the fatal disease affection of the heart.

She was a thoughtful, affectionate and a most self-sacrificing mother. Her joy and sunshine, her merry laugh and her happy presence possessed a sacred charm to the home. She was the mother of eight children, of whom two preceded her to the grave.

She was a member of the Methodist church, at Heath Chapel. Her body was taken to Pleasant Grove M. E. church and interred in the graveyard there. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Neely, Sabbath at 3 o'clock.

How We Catch a Cold.

A cold is sometimes contracted while remaining inactive for a while in an uncomfortable room, or a cold draft and by failing to sleep under like conditions. But most colds are caught while sleeping in a cold draft. Deep sleep causes sluggish circulation which renders the system susceptible to change of temperature. To prevent this, sleep under plenty of cover. To cure colds use Rydalen's Liniment. It lessens the severity and shortens the duration of a cold and prevents complications, Bronchitis and Consumption. S. T. Lottner.

Fudges Letter.

Fudges, Oct. 28.—The long dry spell has at last been broken. Some of the farmers were not very anxious to see the rain, for they had a good deal of cotton to pick. They are all quite busy now picking peas and hatching corn. There is a fine crop of both this year.

There have been several marriages around here since my last letter. Mr. James K. Lige, of the Witt, and Miss Rhoda Minors were married Sunday night, Oct. 10th, at the residence of Rev. J. H. Yarbrough. We extend to them hearty congratulations.

On Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 25th, Mr. Oscar A. Jordan and Miss Mayne Ferguson, from near Rodman, were married. The groom was accompanied by several relatives and friends. Shortly after reaching the home of the bride, dinner was served, which was bountiful. The parlor was beautifully decorated with white and green. Promptly at 1 o'clock, the wedding march was being rendered by Miss Bessie Jackson, the bride came in wearing on the arm of the groom and passed in front of the bank of ferns and yucca and thus the impressive and solemn ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Yarbrough.

The bride was beautifully given in white and carried a most exquisite bouquet of white roses and asparagus fern tied with white ribbon. The groom wore a handsome black suit and never looked better than on this occasion.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, accompanied by relatives and friends drove to the home of the groom, where a most delightful reception was held. The presents were both useful and beautiful.

Mrs. Bettie Howze and Mr. Mann, of Leno, were married Wednesday, Oct. 20th, by Rev. J. H. Yarbrough. Several from here attended the State fair this week in Columbia.

The patrons of the Jordan school elected Miss Louise DeBruhl, of Abbeville, as teacher, but she had accepted another school, so they are still without a teacher and will have another meeting tomorrow. Mr. David Jordan, Jr., and sister, Miss Ott, spent one day in Rock Hill last week.

Rydalen's Stomach Tablets.

Rydalen's Stomach Tablets are made for the Stomach and organs of assimilation and are not intended to cure the stomach. They are concentrated aspic, Pepsin, Pepsin, Pancreatin and other digestive organs. They contain powerful and mild stimulants that have a specific effect on the stomach and organs of assimilation and which aid nature in reconstructing the broken down cells and strengthening the flaccid muscles of the stomach and other digestive organs. Rydalen's Stomach Tablets are a perfect stomach medicine, they relieve at once and soon cure the worst forms of stomach trouble. Price 25c and 50c. a box. S. T. Lottner.

Pure Air Test.

If you want to know if the air of your bedroom is pure take an empty wide necked bottle capable of holding just nine and a half fluid ounces of water. Into this empty bottle pour half an ounce of lime-water. Let the bottle remain uncorked in the room all night long. In the morning the lime-water is milky the ventilation is very bad indeed. If the lime-water becomes milky on your covering the bottle with your hand and shaking the vessel the ventilation is not sufficiently good. If the lime-water remains clear the air of the room is pure.

Is Beauty Only Skin Deep?

Beauty is only skin deep, but the forces that create beauty are as deep as the fountain from which they flow, when the blood is charged with impurities Beauty disappears, when the blood is pure Beauty blossoms in face and form. Rydalen's Liniment keeps the Liver healthy and the Bowels regular, prevents the blood becoming laden with bile and waste matter, cleanses the blood, purifies the pores and Beauty more than skin deep. S. T. Lottner.

Law on Cruelty to Animals.

The person in South Carolina who thinks he can work to death or treat cruelly an animal simply because he owns it, is mistaken, for not only is public sentiment against it, but there is a strong state law on the subject.

Many persons have been rightly indignant lately over the contractors on the new railroad working animals whose shoulders and necks are in a terribly lacerated condition, and the efforts of Magistrate Johnson to stop it officially when persuasive means had failed are to be commended, for while we understand thoroughly the desire of the contractors to rush the work with all possible speed, still that is no excuse for torturing animals that are not fit to work.

In order that the public may know what the legislature has done for the protection of dumb animals from such treatment the following from the state law is quoted:

"Sec. 624. Whoever shall willfully abuse, or cruelly treat any horse, mule or draught animal or beast of burden, shall, upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, suffer imprisonment for five days, or pay a fine of fifteen dollars."

"Sec. 624. Every owner or person having the possession, charge, or custody of any animal, who cruelly drives or works, when unfit for labor, or cruelly abandons the same, or who carries or causes the same to be carried, in or upon any vehicle, or otherwise, in an unnecessarily cruel or inhuman manner, or knowingly or willfully authorizes or permits the same to be subjected to unnecessary torture, suffering or cruelty of any kind, shall be punished for every such offense in the manner provided in preceding section."

"Sec. 625. Whoever overloads, overdrives, overworks, tortures, torments, needlessly mutilates, cruelly kills, ill treats, or whoever neglects, or who neglects to shelter, or who neglects to furnish necessary pain or suffering upon any animal, or who causes the same to be done, whether such person be the owner thereof or have the charge or custody of the same, shall for every such offense, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding thirty (30) days or by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars."

Just in this connection it might be well for the police authorities to keep a lookout for the drivers of some delivery wagons about town, who drive their animals at a furious rate from early morning until night, a practice which is not only a violation of the law against fast driving, but is cruel treatment to animals as well.

Broke Into His House.

S. L. Quinn, of Cavendish, Vt., was robbed of his customary habit by invasion of Chronic Constipation. When Dr. King's New Life Pills broke into his house, his trouble was arrested and now he is entirely cured. They're guaranteed to cure, 25c at the Woods Drug Co. and Johnson Drug Store.

Does Prohibition Prohibit.

Kansas has been under constitutional prohibition for twenty-one years, a period long enough, it would seem, to give the law fair test. As to what the test shows, statistics recently published are illuminating. In five of the one hundred and five counties of Kansas the prohibition law is generally ignored. These five counties have seventeen per cent of the population and crime. The population in these twenty-one counties has increased from 925,615 to 1,470,495, while the number of prisoners has decreased from 917 to 788. That prohibition is generally, but not efficiently, enforced, appears in the fact that the United States still collects a liquor tax from Kansas of only $7,700,000, while Nebraska, not a prohibition state, collects $25,000,000. In 1903, ten years ago, Kansas had gained three cities of over 10,000 inhabitants, while Nebraska had lost three. Leslie's Weekly.

THE LANTERN,
PUBLISHED TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS.
J. T. BIGHAM, Editor and Prop.
Entered at the Postoffice at Chester, S. C., as second-class mail matter.

TUESDAY, NOV. 1, 1904.

We referred to the new mail service for the Rocky Mount section of the county before the rural delivery started. It is now in operation and is an intolerable nuisance. By far the best service that section has ever had was the star route service since July 21st, when the carrier reversed his course, starting from the lower end of the route and getting the mail at Blackstock after all the morning trains passed. If the rural delivery carriers followed the same course it would improve the service, but we believe that that section can be served better by the star route as last operated. The people should rise up and demand better accommodations.

The dispensary people about Gaffney who sent for Senator Tillman to save the institution there from being voted out under the Bruce bill, must have felt keen disappointment when the daddy took his per child across his lap and spanked it and threatened to kill it if it did not build up a better reputation. He said it was better once, and he told how he thought it could be improved again, but he did not say much that had value as a defense. Indeed it seemed that he refrained from making charges of corruption only for the reason that he does not make charges which he cannot prove.

By the way, it sounds strange to hear a statement like this from the Tillman of 1890, but every right-hearted man will be glad to learn that he has reformed.

Senator Tillman thinks the general assembly is responsible for the fog of suspicion that hangs over the dispensary management on account of its taking the controlling power out of the hands of state officers elected by the people. It is our recollection that a very dense fog of suspicion hung over the dispensary when it was under the control of state officers elected by the people, and it is our impression that it was taken out of their hands for that very reason.

It appears as if Daddy Tillman were preparing to down his child and blame others with the responsibility of appling it.

Contract for Columbia College.

The contract for the work on the buildings for the new Columbia college at Hyatt Park has been awarded to Grady & Jordan, contractors of Greenville. Much of the material is now on the ground and the actual construction will commence at an early date. The buildings will be ready for occupancy by next fall. The State, 30th.

General M. C. Butler to marry.

A New York paper has announced the engagement of Major M. C. Butler of South Carolina, formerly United States senator from that state, and Mrs. Whitman of South Carolina. The marriage will take place at Tuxedo. General Butler is now in New York. Mrs. Whitman is well known in this city, where she formerly resided. She has been a widow for several years.—Washington Star.

Miss Lichtenwanger's Place.

Rock Hill, Oct. 31.—The place of the late Miss Lichtenwanger, teacher of Latin at Winthrop college, is being filled by Miss Brunst, formerly first assistant to Miss Lichtenwanger. Miss Brunst has the higher classes and is assisted by Miss Maude Martin, of Harmony, a graduate of Winthrop, who is in charge of the lower classes. This arrangement will hold until the next meeting of the board of trustees. Special to the State.

Out in South Dakota the farmers are selling their best beef to the beef trust for a cents a pound—a record low price. In New York the trust has fixed prices that you get for your beef from 20 to 27 cents to you. But was never lower when the farmer has it to sell, and never higher to the man who pays the retail butcher bill.—New York American.

Since the verdict of the court martial is dispositive of the service to which they will be no Hitch member when Georgia soldiers are ordered to present themselves from a Union Prisoner.

Poultry and Women.

Each year sees many women added to the rank of those who raise poultry for market and there is little doubt but what the industry offers many opportunities for women who have the necessary ground and the determination to gain their experience slowly. The writer recently spent a week with a friend at a popular summer resort along the sea coast of New Jersey and profoundly wished he had his poultry with him. Chickens of the size for roasters sold for 35 cents a pound in the markets, while guaranteed fresh eggs were in demand beyond the supply at 40 cents a dozen. While these prices are exceptional there is no doubt but what there is a profitable demand for both eggs and poultry in nearly every section of the country.

Women can bring to the work of poultry raising that care for the small details so necessary to success in the work and a characteristic lacking in the majority of men. It is a well known fact, and every honest farmer will admit it, that two hens set at the same time, one by a man and the other by a woman, will show a decided difference in the number of chicks hatched, and it will always be in favor of the hen set and cared for by the woman. The man forgets to give the hen water or food or some other attention she needs, during the period of incubation. Women with a rural training should do some close studying of the poultry business this summer and make a start in the winter or next spring.—Exchange.

Aldrich Plan Succeeded.

J. D. Petty, near White Stone, planted corn and cotton, a two-acre lot, near his home, after the Aldrich plan. The land was thin and he did not fertilize heavily. He planted two rows of cotton and then two rows of corn. The rows are three feet apart and the corn about 3 1/2 feet in the drill. He likes the plan. He says that he made as much corn as he does when he plants all corn. He got a fine crop of bunch peas from the corn rows. He planted the corn two or three weeks before the cotton. One advantage is that the corn is never neglected. When he worked the cotton the corn also got its share. The peas help to keep up the land. He is sure that he will get a bale of cotton from the two acres, which is a fair crop for thin land. He will plant more of his land that way next year.—Spartanburg Spartan.

Japanese as Farmers.

The Japanese have surprised the world as fighters; but, according to Harold Bole, they are also the most remarkable agricultural nation in the world, says the London Globe. They have only 10,000 square miles of arable land. An automobile going fifty miles an hour could skirt this land in eleven hours. Yet it supports an imperial nation—the rising power of the far east. Experts admit that the scientific skill of Japanese agriculturists is unapproached. "Patient fidelity, with knowledge of the chemistry of the soil and the physiology of plants, have yielded results that have astonished the most advanced agriculturists in western nations."—Ex.

FOR SPECIAL EDITION

Of the News and Courier, "Our Women in the War," the Mothers of the Confederacy, The Veterans, Their Sons and Daughters, Hail of Their Glory.

We earnestly and cordially invited to contribute accounts of such instances as are known to them where the women of the south showed, during the war, their patriotic heroism and patient fortitude. Such contributions are intended for the "Special Edition" which The News and Courier, Charleston, S. C., proposes at an early date to publish, devoted entirely to true history of the "Women in the War," who bound their warriors' sash when they went forth to fight; who suffered worse than death a thousand times; who were stung and wounded by privations that the hardest soldier ever knew; and who, besides, were exposed to the infamies and taunts of the infamous raiders who visited Southern homes and stripped them of what was holiest and dearest, because it was dear and holy."

It will be published with the endorsement of all the camps of Veterans and Sons of this city and the direction of Committees from all of these Camps.

Perhaps many of those who suffered the most and crowned their sufferings with the grandest heroism, or those who knew of such, are accustomed to write for publication and would shrink naturally from such an undertaking—to such we can only say, write down in your own way the incidents as you remember them and send to us. We will have what you write edited—clothed in company dress—just contributions are the most valuable.

Give names of participants so as to make true history.

Contributions are asked, and specially asked for at once from those of the most brilliant literary attainments; from those of modest culture; from those who can tell the truth, and from those who can not write at all and must get some friend to write for them. We only ask a true history of what our women did, how they suffered and all that they endured with such heroism, that justice may be done to those deserving of all honor, all praise, all glory.

Send these contributions to Theodore D. Jarvey, Editor, Charleston, S. C.

We desire to issue this special edition just as early as possible and ask that the contributions be sent in just as soon as they can be written. Don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today.

Cotton Growers.

Senator P. L. Hardin, president of the cotton growers association of Chester county, requests us to say that there will be a meeting of the association at the court house next Monday, Nov. 7th, and every person interested in the rewards of cotton production is invited to attend.

Schedule on Southern.

The Southern has revised its schedules. Following are the changes that will affect us on and after the 6th instant:

No. 33 will pass Chester at 9:55, instead of 10:50 a. m.

No. 27 will pass here nearly the same time; perhaps a few minutes earlier.

No. 29 will pass here at 11:05 p. m. instead of 11:22.

The Flower Show for the benefit of the Free Kindergarten will be on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 10th and 11th. Admission 5 cts., 25 cts.

Court Proceedings.

The court was called yesterday morning, but owing to the crowd and confusion in town on account of the circus, it was deemed prudent to suspend until this morning.

Judge Watts did not think it necessary to make a charge to the grand jury at this term.

The case of Lewis Williams for housebreaking and larceny was called and he pleaded guilty and went to the pen for one year.

The case of Henry Boulware for assault and battery with intent to kill is now on trial.

Wanted—Some partridges and doves to go on my bird pen. Will pay a good price for them. Means McFadden.

To Develop Calhoun Falls.

A company has been organized with Dr. S. M. Orr, of Anderson, S. C., president, to develop Bath, Madox and Glenn Shoals, on the Savannah River, recently purchased. About 8,000 horse power will be developed and an electric plant, built for transmitting power obtained to operate cotton mills and furnishing light and power to adjacent towns. About $500,000 is expended. J. E. Siring, Greenville, S. C., is engineer in charge. Machinery has not been purchased. Manufacturers' Record.

Mental Anguish Suit.

Lancaster, Oct. 28.—The court of common pleas has been in session since Monday, Judge Watts presiding.

The most important case thus far tried is that of W. Alton Hughes vs. the Western Union Telegraph company. The suit was for $1,900, brought under the recent mental anguish act. Mr. Hughes resides at Heath Springs in this county. On December 18th last his brother, working in a mill near Coleman, Fla., was accidentally killed. His sister wired him from Coleman, Fla., to that effect at 11:30 a. m. the same day. The telegram was not delivered to Mr. Hughes until 2 p. m. the next day. Owing to the delay in the transmission and delivery of the message the plaintiff did not reach Coleman until two days after his brother was killed. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for $500. R. E. Wylie, Esq., represented the plaintiff and J. Hardin Marion, Esq. of Chester, and C. D. Jones, Esq., the defendant. The court will occupy the remainder of the month with jury cases.—Special to The State.

House to rent and board wanted. Apply to Mrs. A. Leard.

Conductor T. W. True and Mr. Arthur Lewis, of the Chester Swing train, have returned from a trip to Columbia and Augusta. They left for Lewis Turnout this morning to spend the remainder of their vacation holiday.

The crowd in the city yesterday on account of the Porepaugh and Sells show, was immense. Some have estimated it at between 15,000 and 20,000. The show was said to be very good. One of the men fell while acting on account of a horse breaking and was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital and is now getting better. As far as we know good order prevailed.

Tilman and His Pet.

Spartanburg, October 22.—Special: "If the dispensary law cannot be lifted out of the fog of suspicion which hangs over it I am in for killing it." This was the expression of Senator Tilman today at Gaffney. The General Assembly, he claimed, was responsible for the clouded condition by taking the purchasing and controlling power out of the hands of state officers who are elected by the people and who are above suspicion. The tongue of calumny and slander has been exceedingly busy and it will continue to be, he insisted, until the control of the system be changed.

To the charges that those connected with the dispensary were getting rich quick and that they received rebates, he gave no credence, because he claimed for himself honesty and he charged no man with dishonesty until he could prove it. But charges of taking rebates and getting rich quick, he argued against the deal as well as the living, he urged, would continue as long as the present system of purchasing liquor and management of the system continued. The simple fact was that the people thought things were not straight at the dispensary. He would not say that there was foundation for the rumors, but the dispensary, he urged, could not stand this battery of insinuation, innuendo and slander, and a change ought to be made. He urged that the best, and only thing to do was to have a purchasing board men absolutely above suspicion, men accountable directly to the people. The following were his leading points:

There should be a newly organized state board of control elected by the people.

And purchases from first hand and not from jobbers or retailers.

The state should sell its own brands to stop attempts to corrupt dispensers.

The state should refuse to sell special or case goods brands, which give the chance for pickings.

There should be strict examination of the bulk figures bought and sold by the state under its graduation from distiller to retailer.

The state should screw up the loose taps of the system so that there should be no authority of law for beer dispensaries.—August Kohn in News and Courier.

For Rent—Four convenient cottages. Apply to F. E. Culvern, at oil mill, or D. B. Rebo, Center street.

Have What They Want.

No, dear, sprightly, frank-spoken Lewiston Sun. The News can't "join us in a call for re-submission." But, disposed to be courteous and accommodating always, we'll frankly tell you why. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." We've got prohibition; and we want it; it is the only correct method of dealing with the liquor traffic, and we propose to keep it. An overwhelming majority of the people of Maine believe this; they have taken their position, fortified it, and propose to hold it at all hazards. The invitation of the Sun reminds us. Early in the war of the sixties Port Pickens, at the entrance of the fine harbor of Pensacola, on the Florida coast, was commanded by a gallant soldier named Slemmer. The Confederates wanted that position very much. Gen. Braxton Bragg came down there with an immense army and besieged the position. When good and ready Bragg sent a message under flag of truce, demanding the surrender, and adding, "We have ten thousand men here and twenty thousand more within whittling distance. The gallant Slemmer, with his little garrison, promptly replied, "you may as well begin to whistle!" It will do no harm for the re-submission advocates to "whistle" continuously, but the old fortress, prohibition, whether constitutional or statutory, she "never surrenders."—Bridgeton (Maine) News.
